

Plastics in the Ocean

King Street / Cheapside Junction, EC2V 6DT

7 September 2019

With the Worshipful Company of Water Conservators taking a leading role on environmental matters in the City of London, you might like to know of this event – if you are in London, come and take a look. It should be fun.

Générik Vapeur and Gorilla Circus in conjunction with @cityoflondon are staging a night time walk across a plastic-filled artificial island formed by the currents of the North Pacific Ocean. Is this man-made 8th continent the end of life as we know it? Have humans sacrificed the natural world in the pursuit of technology?

This adrenaline-fuelled performance featuring daring aerial acrobatics and high-wire stunts is planned to transform the City's streets into a spectacle. Entry to the event to be staged at 8.00pm on Saturday 7th September is free.
